

Malcolm Bryan Love

Malcolm Love is a presenter, freelance producer and communication skills specialist.

Malcolm presents at events and coaches people all over the world to be on radio and TV and how to speak in public. His clients include corporate organisations, politicians, church leaders, scientists, academics, leading business people, charities and campaigners.

As a part-time lecturer in Science Communication at the University of West of England (UWE) he regularly lectures on the subject across the UK and abroad. Malcolm is also chief trainer for famelab UK and famelab international which challenges scientists to become better public communicators.

Before joining the BBC staff in 1988 Malcolm had been a freelance journalist in Central America (Nicaragua and El Salvador). He worked for the BBC as a producer (and occasional presenter) in London, Cardiff and Bristol where he became senior producer for features and documentaries. Since going freelance in 1997 Malcolm has made many more programmes for the BBC and other outlets.

Awards include a Sony for 'best interview of the year' (for a programme he made with the legendary BBC journalist and presenter John Humphrys) and a Sandford St Martin award for his long running series 'Devout Sceptics' (with writer and journalist Bel Mooney).
